

Washington, Jan. 21.—Congress got down to business again today after its holiday recess. The house after an eleven minute session, adjourned until tomorrow in respect to the memory of the late Representative John G. McHenry of Pennsylvania.

Porto Cortez, Mex., Jan. 2.—Five men were killed and several wounded in a fight at Comacagua Tuesday between the adherents of General Luis Salazar and Governor of Comacagua and friends of Guillermo Ferreras, a central leader. After a personal encounter between Governor Salazar and Ferreras the latter summoned their friends, who armed themselves and appeared for the fight. The governor escaped unharmed but Ferreras was badly wounded.

the new structure and to carry traffic. This false work was composed of the strongest piles, driven to bed rock through eight or nine feet of earth. The piles were properly capped and braced, and the structure was of such strength as to carry any load.

It is the supposition that the heavy volume of water passing down the river, due to the recent rains, had washed the earth from the base of the piles, causing them to slip out

* Growing cities have publicize bureaus and are advertising their opportunities—money-making, business-making and home-making possibilities.

* The town that gets ahead must place its opportunities before the public. It must start some kind of a publicity campaign to show the value of the town as a business center, the production of its agricultural lands, and the prospects of its resources.

* Any town can well afford to advocate those things in a small way. But the larger the investment in publicity the greater the returns.

* If the progressive citizens of a town get together they can find some way to launch a publicity campaign to get direct results.

This Will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry

Save 25 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home.

This recipe makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate coughs even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 2 pints of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Make a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It's a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, croup, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in vitamin and all the natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has gained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

GELATIN.

It is no longer necessary to use gelatin of animal origin, since a vegetable gelatin, prepared from Ceylon moss, possesses all the good properties of the animal gelatin without its serious objections. Most people do not know that the attractive dishes prepared largely from ordinary gelatin owe their dainty appearance to scraps of gristle, tendon and other fragments that cannot be more conveniently used for sausage or other "deviled" products of the slaughter house. The health department of Berlin has recently discovered that gelatin frequently contains arsenic, which is used in the treatment of hides used for gloves.

CITY SOLICITOR ON THE SUBWAY

MR. JONES THINKS IT NOW TOO LATE FOR INVESTIGATION BY COMMITTEE.

Communication Refers to Report Made at Annual Meeting of the Board of Trade.

(Communicated.)

The report of the President of the Board of Trade, dealing with many subjects and especially with the subway, having been published in full in your paper and thereby having obtained the fullest publicity, probably it will not be out of place to ask for space to make such comments thereon as occur to some of us who are interested in the success of the subway proposition.

In general, the suggestions of the President seem so reasonable that criticism would seem to be an unkind function, but it appears to me that two very important factors in the situation have been overlooked.

It is suggested that an investigation should be made by a committee of the feasibility of the proposition and apparently that everything should stand still until this investigation is completed.

Investigation is, as a rule, always in order and often salutary, but in this case it would seem to be too late. Every elected official of the city, including the writer and a majority of the City Council, is pledged by pre-election promises to do everything in his power to push the subway project to an early and satisfactory settlement. For one, the writer can only look at a pre-election promise as a binding obligation, not to be trifled with under any circumstances and therefore with all due respect to the Board of Trade and its president, so far as the law department of the city is concerned, the proceedings must go ahead with all possible speed until the work is completed.

Again, while the matter is presented by the president as one of financial expediency, as to whether it would be profitable or not it seems to me to be bigger and broader than that and to involve elemental considerations of justice.

The presence of the two railroads and especially of the two great east and west trunk lines in and through our city, has been of very great benefit to us. In fact, there is no doubt that they are the basis of the growth and prosperity of Newark. All sections of the city have, to a certain extent, shared in this benefit alike. But, on the other hand, while all other sections have received the benefit at no cost to themselves in the way of detriment, there can be no question that the South End has been very materially injured thereby. While other sections have been improving—additions being laid out and built up, and tax and sale values doubling—the South End has stood still, and all because to get to it one has to cross a large number of railroad tracks, one or more of which frequently blocked for long periods of time.

Thus it is that while the city as a whole has shared completely in the benefits of the presence of the railroads, the burden and loss of it has all been thrown on the South End, and thus it is that it appears but just and right that the rest of us should in sheer justice alone be ready, willing and anxious to do such things as may be necessary to relieve our fellow-citizens of the South End of a burden which is only correlative to our benefits which we derive from the presence of the railroad.

Very sincerely yours,
RODERIC JONES.

SOUTH SIDE SUBWAY.
The city solicitor's communication was brought to the attention of one who prepared the Board of Trade report today. Mr. Spencer said:

The Newark Board of Trade is not opposed to subway construction neither does it seek to delay action. The suggestion for an impartial investigation and report by a committee of business men was made because it is the opinion of the directors, the voter should have such an investigation made before being asked to vote.

either for or against the proposed bond issue. An investigation could be made without delaying actual work.

The substance of the Board of Trade report which was published December 30th on the subway follows: All of the directors favor giving South Newark immediate relief from present conditions, recognizing the need of a subway and appreciating that its construction will mean improvement of South Newark property and increased valuation, thereby helping to defray the city's share of the cost. However, before the voters are asked to authorize the bond issue, several matters should have consideration by an impartial committee. (1)—What are the benefits to be derived? (2)—What relation does the benefit bear to the cost? (3)—Has the proposed improvement been considered in the light of future demands for other subways? (4)—Is the plan proposed the best solution? (5)—What in view of present or future needed improvements can the city afford to do? (6)—What will be the city's share of property damage? (7)—What effect will the subway have upon local drainage and upon the passenger and freight stations?

The Board of Trade report said the problem should be treated as a business proposition, should not be decided upon sentiment or prejudice, but should be studied from every viewpoint and what is done should be for the best interest of the whole city. The report further stated that the directors were not in favor of unnecessarily increasing the tax rate, nor in favor of increasing the rate out of proportion to the benefits derived. The Board of Trade is also opposed to placing any unjust burden upon either the railway companies or upon the city. In short, the Board of Trade believes the South Side is entitled to relief and wants that relief given but it favors doing only what the city can afford to do and in doing what is to the best interests of the city.

This report was made by the Board of Directors for 1912. The new board will meet Monday night for reorganization. The directors are: W. F. Alward, W. L. Prout, J. F. Irwin, W. C. Welis, W. C. Metz, E. M. Bausher, F. Beggs, F. C. Evans, William M. Morgan, E. C. Norris, Carl Norpell.

Queer, but Correct.
Professor Bradner Matthews, in his quality of philologist, said one day in New York:

"The past participle, 'gotten,' has gone out in England, though it still lingers on with us. In England, however, 'gotten' is almost as obsolete as 'putten'."

"In some parts of Cumberland the villagers still use 'gotten' and 'putten,' and a pupil teacher once told me of a lesson on these past participles where in she gave her pupils an exercise to write on the blackboard.

"In the midst of the exercise an urchin began to laugh. She asked him why he was laughing and he answered:

"Joe's put putten where he should have putten put."

CHATSWITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

Her New Year Resolutions

WHAT New Year resolutions did you make yesterday?" asked the young married woman joining the group at the tea-table.

"That sort of thing is out of date," responded one of the crowd.

"Nobody makes resolutions any more."

"Nobody has time to make them," observed another.

"Maybe if you'd make resolutions, you'd have more time," replied the young married woman. "And even if you don't make the resolutions, I think it is helpful to give a little thought to what resolutions you might make."

"What ones did you make?" asked one of the crowd.

The young married woman colored slightly. "Maybe they are of a too personal nature to tell."

"Pshaw! We are all good friends. Haven't we grown up together from the time we were kittens?"

"I don't know as I made specific resolutions," said the young married woman reflectively. "But I did do some thinking as to just what I want to achieve this coming year. That is, I tried to see my home a year from now, and my expense account, and myself, and a lot of things like that; and I wanted them all to be an improvement on what they are now, and I tried to think how to bring this about."

"You did a very wise thing," said the elderly woman of the party.

"The reason so few of us make any real progress is because we never stop to look where we are going. We live along from day to day and week to week, and let circumstance force us into the path we take. If we get invitations to social affairs, we accept or not, as we feel like it. We do not stop to think, we do not even know, whether we are overdoing or underdoing this matter of pleasure. We do not know whether we are overdoing or underdoing in the matter of dress or of the table. If we find that we are spending more than we should, we temporarily retrench here or there. But few of us have any method in any of these things. Few of us map out any definite plan to pursue."

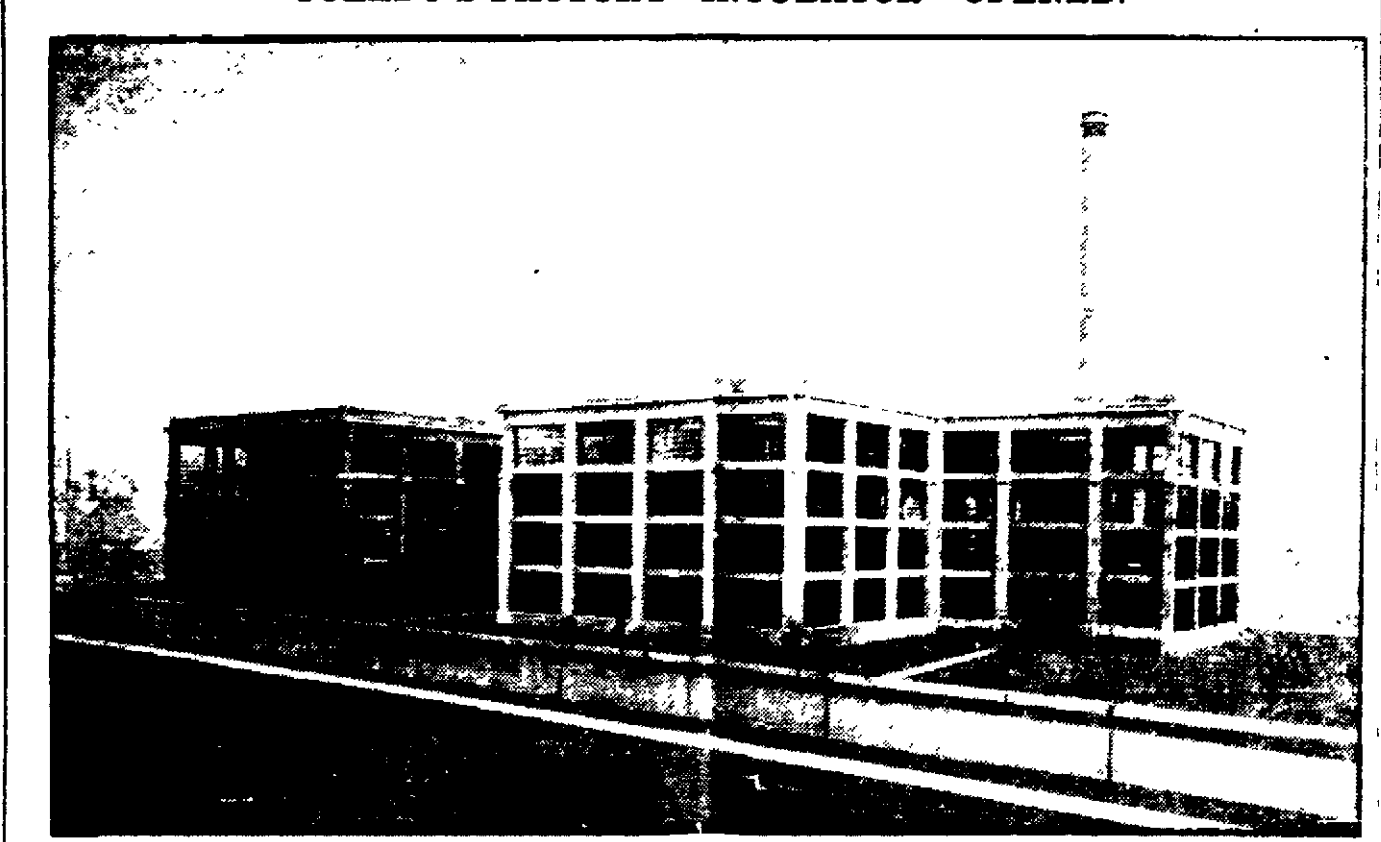

"That is the way it seemed to me when I got to thinking about it yesterday," said the young married woman. "I was just living along doing whatever came up for me to do. There was no sense of proportion in anything. And it seemed to me I could make more of my life by introducing proportion and method into it. Of course, I do not mean hard and fast rules that cannot be changed, for naturally, things will happen occasionally to upset one's plans. But I mean in a general way. I think I'll have more to show at the end of this year for having lived, than I have now. I hope so, at any rate."

"We'll watch the experiment," said the friends around the tea-table.

"Don't watch it," laughed the young married woman. "Try it yourself."

TOLEDO'S FACTORY "INCUBATOR" OPENED.

Toledo, O., which has already secured much favorable advertising because of its palatial Art Museum, its spacious municipal Market House and its new high schools, now makes another bid for fame and tells the outside world that it has in its new Crystal Palace one of the most unique buildings ever constructed.

This edifice, entirely constructed of glass, concrete and iron, is known as the Toledo Factories Building, an incubator for small industries. It is really the outgrowth of civic patriotism, and will stand as a useful and profitable monument to the aggressiveness of the Commerce Club, for it was through the efforts of this organization that the building was constructed, with the idea of bringing to Toledo a large number of small manufacturing concerns.

The building is 32x204 feet in size, four stories high. Sixty per cent of the space has already been rented. Fifty small factories can be housed in this building.
